THE YELLOW DOG IN POLITICS MUST GET OUT

The Hilo Tribune devotes a considerable portion of its space in its last issue to "The Yellow Dog," and announces itself as one who loves not the party less but the good of the country more. A portion of the article is here given:

The first thing that the intelligent voter must do is to make sure whether the alleged Yellow Dog is a reality or a bogey. It is dangerously easy to cry "Wolf," and there are always yellow journalists, looking through their own yellow spectacles, ready to raise the cry of "Yellow dog," merely to create a sensation or to excite prejudice against a particular party. There has been far too much of these mud-slinging tactics during the present presidential contest on the mainland, and they do no good. Therefore be on your guard against false accusations.

Having proved the truth of the Yellow Dog cry, as, for instance, by finding that a Republican journal denounces a Democratic candidate, or that a Democratic organ condemns a nominee of its own party, and backs its statements with facts that can not be denied, the duty of every honest elector is perfectly clear. The name of the Yellow Dog candidate should be scratched without the slightest hesitation.

Patriotic ethics are superior to party ethics every time. But you must be sure that you are acting from patriotic motives, and not from personal animus, or pique, or any other unworthy feeling. It is no excuse for political apathy to say that you disapprove of certain persons placed on the ticket, so long as these persons have a clean record and are intellectually and morally fitted for positions for which they have been nominated. Personal preferences and prejudices must give way before the ethics of the straight ticket. But party obligations go no further.

When it is found that, through error, oversight or chicanery, an unworthy candidate's name has found its way on to the ticket, it is the duty of every patriot and every lover of good government to denounce such candidate and use every effort to secure his defeat. The Yellow Dog usually has a tough hide, and the plainest hints are lost upon him. He is not the sort of good-mannered dog that goes down stairs when he sees preparations being made for kicking him down. He will not retire, and the party managers may find it impossible to get rid of him. The only recourse is to scratch the ticket.

Turning to Oahu, we find the Advertiser strongly denouncing certain candidates on the Republican ticket. The most notorious of these is George Kaea, a candidate for the Legislature, whose published record shows that he has been no fewer than twenty-three times convicted of offenses in the criminal courts. Now, a good man may commit a crime, acting on impulse or under the spur of necessity, but may sincerely repent and forfeit none of his rights and privileges as a citizen; and it should be the aim of everyone to assist him in rehabilitating his character and restoring him to public usefulness in that sphere for which his talents may suit him. But when a person has been convicted more than a score of times, it argues habitual criminality and a disregard for law and order which ought to disqualify him from holding any public position. The Advertiser is to be commended for the stand it has taken against Kaea's candidature.

The same journal takes strong exception to John W. Cathcart's candidature for the position of County Attorney in Oahu. Its allegations against Cathcart, who is a Republican, is that he has acted as attorney in civil actions for persons against whom it was his duty to proceed in criminal charges. These accusations are strenuously denied by Cathcart, but the Advertiser adduces actual records in support of its statements. On the other hand, it is contended that "the question is one of legal ethics, and does not involve Mr. Cathcart's integrity." This may be perfectly true, but at the same time the ethics of an honorable profession are not to be overlooked.

No elector need be ashamed to scratch his ticket when he has such grounds for doing it as are described by Governor Frear. The end of politics is good government, and that end can only be reached by electing men of character and integrity. We are for the straight ticket every time, but every candidate on it must be "straight."

Down with the Yellow Dog.

LITTLE STORIES OF HOME AND ABROAD

Townfolk never get tired of observing Jack's funny stunts while ashore. It may be that the monkey drill he is compelled to undergo on board the big white cruisers prepare him for minstrel performances ashore. These exhibitions, however, are given generally aboard a cayuse or a bicycle, in either case the rider not only looking funny, but acting in a way that should take him on the vaudeville stage. With elbows swinging, trousers legs flapping, he bounces through the streets, not so much the terror of pedestrians, but the terror of the bystanders, who fear he is going to hurt himself. Before the fleet left for Samoa a resident of Nuuanu Valley encountered a trio of blue-jackets tearing up the valley as if their lives depended on the sport. Hastily throwing one of his children into a yard and shoving another into the ditch, the resident scrambled up a bank looking for a safe place. Just then the horsemen came abreast the group, when one shouted, "Reverse engines!", and all three threw their mounts to their haunches. The leader raised his cap to the gentleman and said apologetically: "Ye didn't think we'd run over yer, did ye? I give signal to 'stand by' down below, and we reversed O. K. Good morning. Giddap!" And off they went toward the Pali.

Candidate Eddie Quinn has reason to be sore and disgusted, as he told some of his friends one morning last week in Cunha's Alley. There was to be a meeting of Republicans at Pearl City one evening and Eddie sent some advertising doggers down there to be distributed. The G. O. P. speakers thought that Ewa would be triumphantly Republican and Eddie felt considerable pride in the thought of addressing so many voters. But it was a case of counting the chickens before they were hatched. Eddie missed the train and he had to hire an automobile. There was a hurried dash for Pearl City, and when Eddie got there, there were but eight voters sitting in the glare of the torches. Eddie stayed by his guns, however, and he spoke. "But to think of paying $17 for an automobile and finding only eight voters to talk to. That trip cost me a little over $2 for each voter present and there's no telling whether the whole eight will vote for me or not," is Eddie's wail.

Captain L. La Pierre, Grand Army veteran and grand veteran of the Hawaiian Government, and at present dispenser of water to the ships and steamers that call here, has just returned from San Francisco. It was his first visit to the Coast in twenty-seven years, and he felt like a Reuben in from the country. In fact, he was a Reuben, to use his own expression, for he was almost run over by a brewery wagon and a water wagon. Then his family had difficulty in keeping track of him when he went gazing in at the store windows and getting first views of the new Director's gowns.

On arrival in port, however, he found out what it is to be so long away from a real, big city. A gentleman boarded the steamer out in the bay and after looking over the passengers went up to Captain La Pierre and asked if that was not his name. La Pierre was not to be bunked and he gave some such unusual name as Smith or Brown. The stranger said, "I guess so," and went away smiling.

The captain thought he had played a sharp trick at the start of his experience, but he slid down a peg when one of his Honolulu friends came up with the same stranger and said: "Captain, I'd like to introduce you to your son." The Captain gasped. It was true, he hadn't known his own son.

MOTHER RICE'S 92ND BIRTHDAY

LIHUE, Kauai, October 17.—Mother Rice celebrated her ninety-third birthday last Sunday in the midst of all the descendants who are living here on Kauai. Though ninety-two years of age, Mrs. Rice has retained a perfectly clear mind of the movements of the time. The Hawaiians, to whom she has always been Mother Rice, have a very warm spot in her heart and receive numerous evidences of her love for them. It was therefore but natural that two of the Hawaiian societies of the place wished to show her their gratitude and what more natural than that it should find expression in that peculiarly Hawaiian way, through the song. A number of Hawaiian ladies and gentlemen called on her Monday morning and greeted her with a number of her favorite hymns. After prayers had been offered up, refreshments were served and a sociable hour spent.

FARDEN WITHDRAWS FROM THE TICKET

WAILUKU, Maui, October 17.—Charles K. Farden of Lahaina has withdrawn from the race as candidate for Representative, and his place on the ticket has been filled by the delegates of Lahaina by choosing David Kahaulelio.

The County Central Committee met Wednesday and confirmed the nomination made by the Lahaina district delegates. David Kahaulelio is the Deputy County Attorney and is well known in the political field.

CREW COMING FOR TIE MILL.

Manager Frank McStocker of the Hawaii Development Company received word by cable on Tuesday that a full crew of sawyers would leave San Francisco by the steamer Enterprise, yesterday, for Hilo, says the Hawaii Herald. They are coming here to work at the Hawaii Mahogany Lumber Company's plant at Pahoa, being sent for because it was found that experienced men were needed, the Japanese not being able to handle the more skilled part of the work.

Another recent difficulty that had to be overcome at the mill was to take out the new saws that came with the big plant from the Coast. They were found not to be strong enough for the ohia wood, which is so much harder than that grown on the mainland, and to cut which the saws sent here were inadequate.

This trouble was solved by sending to Pahoa the saws that had been in use at the lumber camp near the volcano, where work has been temporarily stopped.

LAHAINA PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Lufkin were in town last Wednesday.

Mrs. Hayselden, mother of Senator Hayselden, was in town last Wednesday.

Mr. Clark, an expert employed by the planters, has been in Lahaina examining the Pioneer and Olowalu plantations. He reports both in excellent condition.

COLORADO TEAM LOSES TO N. G. H.

Twelve of our National Guard rifle sharpshooters defeated twelve experts from the cruiser Colorado yesterday afternoon on the Fort Shafter range by the comparatively small difference of 110. Ten rounds each were fired at 200 yards standing and 600 and 800 yards prone. The wind was variable but the light fairly good. Both teams shot consistently and there were no bad fallouts on either side.

The following is the official record of the shoot:

G. P. O. DANCE IS NOT TO BE A BALL

It's to be a dance, not a ball. A ball conveys the idea of formality, but a dance is different, or just the opposite, for at a dance everybody wants to know everyone else, and the programs are soon filled. For this reason the entertainment of the chief petty officers of the Pacific fleet will be a dance, not a ball. It is to be given at the Young Hotel tomorrow evening. A committee of fifty persons will see that every C. P. O. there and every young lady have full programs even to the extra-extras.

Final plans were made Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the above committee, at which time everyone agreed to get in Tuesday night and see what good fellows they could be. And over half of this committee is of the fair sex, too.

G. W. R. King, as chairman, will be in charge, while James Lynch and E. M. Cheatham will each have charge of a floor. The latter hope to complete arrangements whereby dances will be started simultaneously in the two floors and thus do away with one of the great drawbacks to dancing in both pavilions.

The following list of Honolulu matrons are the patronesses: Mrs. H. H. Williams, Mrs. C. du Roi, Mrs. J. Cornwell, Mrs. G. W. R. King, Mrs. Augustus Murphy, Mrs. E. C. Brown, Mrs. Theo. Hoffmann, Mrs. S. B. Kingsbury, Mrs. Harry B. Brown, Mrs. E. J. Lord, Mrs. James J. Crockett, Mrs. Chas. Herriek, Mrs. C. M. Schmidt, Mrs. Anna S. Wright, Mrs. Alex. Pratt, Mrs. K. F. Mackie, Mrs. Chas. Rhodes, Mrs. A. C. Wall, Mrs. Tenney Peck, Mrs. W. F. Heilbron, Mrs. Captain Miller, Mrs. Clarence Crabbe.

Following are the names of the committee who will be on hand Tuesday night and, working together with a committee from the ships, see that all have a good time: Mr. George W. R. King, Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Nellie McLain, Miss A. L. Macaulay, Mrs. Chas. Crane, Miss E. Dutoit, Mrs. E. M. Cheatham, Miss Grace Colburn, Mrs. Theo. Martin, Miss N. Lloyd, Mrs. O. C. Scott, Mrs. F. G. Noyes, Miss M. Hiseox, Miss M. F. Waltz, Miss Helen Witt, Miss Anna Deas, Mrs. Fannie Zeone, Miss M. Ackerman, Miss Mabel McAndrews, Mrs. Hottel, Miss Kellner, Mrs. F. J.
